

A Fair Affair by Elodie Hart

© OurSpicyBookClub.com

Book Discussion Resource Page

Welcome to our spicy book club resource page, where we turn the page to a whole new chapter of fun! Get ready to dive into a world of plot twists and character arcs as we leaf through our current book selection. We've provided the Dirty Dozen; twelve spicy and intriguing questions to spark discussion and help you uncover the spine-tingling depths of the story.

The Dirty Dozen

Foreplay - Warm Up Questions

1. What's the overall spice level? 1 (Not Spicy) - 10 (Spiciest Thing I've Ever Read)?
2. How does the spice level compare to the other books we've read together?
3. Honor says monogamy is just centuries of social pressure and nothing more. So let's settle it: is monogamy actually what we all want, or is it just what we've been told to want? No judgement, this is a safe space.

The Spicy Bits - Gettin' Down and Dirty with the Plot

4. Honor admits Jackson's cheating actually adds a little thrill to the marriage because neither of them ever quite knows where they stand. But she hates being made a fool of, so he's supposed to be discreet. Pathetic or kind of genius? And be honest: has unpredictability ever made someone more attractive to you than they had any right to be?
5. Honor's friend tells her to just go have an affair and find out what she's missing. Worst advice or best advice? And would you actually take it?
6. Noah's whole philosophy is that the last days of life should be more magical, not less, and that facing death head on is what makes you actually start living. Has that idea ever landed for you in real life, whether through losing someone, a close call, or just a moment so simple it felt like enough?
7. "You get sucked in by the money, the profile, the adrenaline rush, and you've told yourself you want it for so long you can't remember if it's fact or a story you made up." We're not just talking about careers here. What else does this apply to? Situationships? A whole personality you built around someone? The floor is open.

8. Role play makes an appearance and Honor finds it very fun indeed. Be honest: is role play something you find exciting, something that makes you want to laugh, or something you'd rather leave in the fiction where it belongs?

9. The book plays with taboo role play dynamics and hides it behind "two consenting adults having fun in a safe space." How do you actually feel about exploring ethical boundaries in fiction and role play? Is there something that's hot on the page that you'd never want in real life, or does reading about it ever make you curious about crossing your own lines?

10. Noah drops the full confession, the future, the face in every daydream, the whole lot, knowing it puts her in an impossible position. Was he out of line or is that the most romantic thing in the book? And what would you have done if you were Honor?

11. Initially, Honor knows Noah is it for her, but chooses an eight figure reminder of her marriage over blowing her life up for love. Is she being practical or a coward and, hand on heart, would you actually risk it all or would you take the money too?

Aftercare - Final Thoughts

12. In the end, Honor chooses herself, chooses Noah, and tells Jackson she wants a divorce. He asks about Burberry. Ugh. What's the one thing from this book that's going to stick with you?

Bonus: What questions do you have for the author? If you could dog-ear a page with a question for the author, what would it be?

Feel free to use this page as a starting point for your discussions and as a space to share your thoughts and insights about the book! Don't forget to bookmark this page for future book club adventures!